WHY EXHIBIT AT OUR SYMPOSIUM?

The continuous service record and the community rapport of the Shock and Vibration Symposium speaks for itself. With 89 Symposia under the community's belt, the 92nd Symposium promises to deliver what the organization has come to pride itself on; a quality technical conference. With the conference comes over 200 technical papers, tutorials, meetings, discussion groups, and other fora presented from experts in their field.

These presentations are geared toward an audience of approximately 350-500 representatives of the US Government and the commercial sector of the shock and vibration community. These attendees range in assignment from project engineers and program developers to project managers and product developers. We also have representatives from academia and have attendance from over a dozen different countries.
